Flexible Spending Accounts

Tired of paying taxes? Employees who participate in the Flexible Spending Account (FSA) program don't pay taxes on wages used to pay eligible health and dependent care expenses.

FSA terms

Eligible employee	A permanent State employee who is normally scheduled for 20 or more hours of work per week
FSA	A tax-free account funded through payroll deduction and used to pay eligible health and dependent care expenses
ASI	The administrator of the State's flexible spending account program
Incurred expense	Expenses for services you have received or products you have ordered (not necessarily billed or paid for)
Health care expense	Medical expense for yourself, your spouse, or your dependents (through the year in which they turn age 26) not paid by insurance
Dependent care expense	Expense for care of a child under age 13 or an adult incapable of self-care, which enables you to work. If you are married, your spouse must also work/be a full-time student and the dependent must be claimed on your tax return. If you are divorced, you must be the custodial parent, but are not required to claim the exemption.

How the program works

You decide how much to set aside for health and/or dependent care expenses up to the annual limits (2023 Health FSA limit = $2,850; 2023 Dependent Care FSA limit = $5,000*). This amount is divided by the number of payroll checks you expect to receive the next calendar year (maximum of 24). Through payroll deduction, this amount is taken from your paychecks (before taxes) and deposited to your FSA account(s). You file a claim for reimbursement of an incurred expense. ASI processes "good order" claims by the next business day and sends you a reimbursement by direct deposit or check. Dependent Care expenses incurred through March 15 may be applied toward the previous year's annual election, if any funds remain.

*Per family for single and married employees ($2,500 if married and filing separate tax returns) for dependent care.
